Cerbat Foothills Recreation Area (CFRA):

- Trails:
- Badger Trail - Strenuous
 - Camp Beale Loop Trail (City of Kingman) - Moderate to Strenuous
 - Castle Rock Trail - Strenuous
 - Foothills Rim Trail - Moderate to Strenuous
 - Monolith Gardens Trail - Easy to Moderate
 - Rattler - Strenuous

Trail Ratings: Most trails are rated moderate to strenuous due to the varying terrain which can be steep and rocky. Most grades along trails average 8-10%.

Map Mileage: Mileages depicted on map are calculated along the given route segment from one intersection to the next.

Environmental Conditions:
Temperatures from May to September can oftentimes eclipse 100° F. During this time lightning can be present from summer monsoon storms. These storms are usually in the afternoon and can bring significant amounts of rain and lightning. Flash flooding can occur.

Know Before You Go:

- Check Weather Conditions: <http://forecast.weather.gov/>
- Water: 2 Quarts Per Hour
- Food: Carry a Snack
- Footwear: Sturdy Hiking Boots

Other Items to Carry: First Aid Kit, Map (Contact Local BLM Office), Pack, Flashlight, Spray Bottle, GPS Unit, and Hat/Sunscreen.

CFRA History and Purpose:
The 11,300 Acre CFRA is a mixture of Federal, State, County, City, and Private Lands. A management plan for the area was approved in 1995 by the City of Kingman and BLM. The plan sets a framework for long-term cooperative management of City and BLM controlled lands for recreational purposes.

Cultural Resources:
Human Occupations in the CFRA date back at least 4,000 years. Late Archaic, Cerbat, Cohonina, and Hualapai people lived here. In 1871 the Army built a military post at Camp Beale Springs and established a temporary reservation for the Hualapai Tribe in this area.

Wildlife & Vegetation:
The CFRA provides habitat for mule deer, Sonoran desert tortoise, coyotes, foxes, Gambel's quail, mourning dove, several types of raptors, and many smaller mammals, birds, and reptiles. The CFRA is in an area of Mohave Desert scrub/semi-desert grassland, with yucca, beavertail, prickly pear, creosote, and mesquite.
